

BROWSE & DARBY's exhibition

of 20TH-CENTURY BRITISH PRINTS is only running for two weeks more, so head down there while you can. The show includes works by Bridget Riley, David Hockney and Gerald Laing among others. Until 16 October, London W1 (020 7734 7984)

Akeewakee was founded five years ago in New Orleans by three friends who wanted to create a product that would represent pure pleasure and escapism. These beautifully scented, hand-poured soy candles, packaged in pretty boxes, were the result. £34.50, from senti.co.uk

STYLE NATION

British Style Genius - a five-part series celebrating British fashion - starts on BBC Two tomorrow night. The first programme looks at the high street (don't miss Kate Moss editing her collection for Topshop) and features contributions from Mary Quant, Twiggy and Alexander McQueen. At 9pm

WE LOVE THE BREEZY CONFIDENCE OF MILLY's fresh, light-hearted clothes.

The New York label has just opened a concession in Harrods, London SW1, meaning we can all buy into its East Side style. Dress, £355; 020 7730 1234

CHEAP TRICK

The gothic look is a key trend this season, and there's no prettier way to reference it than by wearing black lace. This top from Peacocks is perfect. £12; 02920 270222
